International Share Trading

Macquarie Private Wealth
A world of opportunities

FORWARD thinking

The Australian share market represents only 2% of the total capitalisation of world equity markets*. Why limit yourself to Australian equities? There's a whole world out there.

A Macquarie International Securities Trading Account gives you the rewards of expanding your investment horizons by investing directly in global equity markets.

Macquarie Private Wealth is becoming increasingly global, so we can open the door to major international share markets with the advice, service and execution support you need.

With our help, you can easily venture beyond Australian shores and enter a whole new world of investment opportunities.

Invest directly in international equity markets

If you want to accelerate growth, it's important to look beyond Australian shores and add international shares to your investment portfolio. Most Australian investors' experience with global markets is limited to managed funds. Macquarie gives you the opportunity to gain direct access to offshore equity markets.

Direct investment in international shares provides diversification across markets and economies. In Australia, financials make up almost half the entire market (44%). One stock alone accounts for over 10% of the entire market. In the US, however, the world's largest company accounts for just 3% of the market*.

As well as strengthening the structure of your portfolio, the inclusion of international equities can dramatically enhance performance. International shares often provide greater returns than Australian shares and can be less volatile. You also gain access to sectors that are not available in the Australian market, such as aerospace, automobiles, microchip technology and pharmaceuticals.

If you're thinking that international shares will be alien to you, you'll be pleased to know that they include everyday brands you know well – Google, Pfizer and Microsoft, to name but a few.
