MACQUARIE GROUP FOUNDATION

For children in remote or marginalised communities the opportunity to play alongside a sporting hero is often a distant dream.

Since 1999, Macquarie Sports has provided sporting opportunities to more than 100,000 children across Australia. Macquarie Sports also offers corporate scholarships to elite young sports people to pursue both their career and sporting goals.

Introduction

We are pleased to present the Macquarie Sports 2015 Annual Review

At Macquarie Sports, we believe that children can be motivated and inspired by interacting with athletic role models. Every year we provide thousands of children in communities throughout Australia with that opportunity, as well as a chance to play sport using brand new equipment. We also aim to provide an experience that can promote team work and leadership skills, whilst educating children about fitness and health.

All of our work reflects Macquarie's view that companies have a role to play in developing healthy communities.

Macquarie Sports' key objectives are to:

- benefit children across communities through the delivery of high quality sporting clinics
- partner with grassroots sporting organisations to enhance their capacity
- convey Macquarie's commitment to the local communities in which it operates.

Macquarie Sports also offers a scholarships program to an elite group of young athletes which involves paid work experience and access to a variety of networks and resources within Macquarie, helping to ensure a healthy career start after their sporting goals have been achieved.

In 2015, Macquarie Sports held 22 community events around Australia, reaching close to 5,000 children. Clinics were run in New South Wales, Queensland, Western Australia, Victoria and the Northern Territory.

Macquarie Sports partnered with Cricket NSW in 2015 to deliver three regional cricket clinics for 750 children in Wagga Wagga, Newcastle and Wollongong, NSW.

NSW Blues and Sydney Sixers players, including Moisés Henriques, Sean Abbott, Doug Bollinger, Nic Maddinson and Gurinder Sandhu were on hand to coach the children. Each participant left with signatures from the coaches as well as their very own backyard cricket set to further hone their skills.

In October 2015, Macquarie Sports hosted its annual Cricket Leadership Day at the Sydney Cricket Ground with players who had exhibited leadership qualities within their school First XI or Green Shield cricket teams. Over 100 players took part in the event, with many travelling from regional NSW and the ACT.

The day included intensive coaching from ex-Australian players Simon Katich, Stuart Clark, Michael Kasproicz and Andy Bichel.

The students also participated in a media and public speaking educational session.

Following five hours of rigorous training, the clinic concluded with the coaches coming together to share their own leadership and career experiences, including Andy Bichel who showed participants his baggy green cap. The coaches also fielded questions from the young aspiring cricketers before providing autographs and photo opportunities.

Netball

This year was another bumper year for the Macquarie Sports netball program, with the highlight being clinics held for the first time in Northern NSW. To be able to take these clinics on the road to young players who rarely get such an opportunity was hugely rewarding. This, combined with the opportunity to once again reach young netballers throughout Sydney is a personal and professional highlight of my year!

Liz Ellis

Macquarie Sports' netball programs reached 960 children in 2015. Clinic locations in Sydney included Campbelltown, Sutherland and Penrith, where local primary schools were invited to attend. A three day netball clinic road show also visited the communities of Casino, Lismore and Ballina on the far north coast of NSW.

Coaches at the clinics included Macquarie Sports' ambassadors Liz Ellis and Catherine Cox, who are two of Australia's most experienced and successful netballers having gained over 100 caps for Australia and gold medals at numerous World Cups and Commonwealth Games. Also coaching at the clinics was current Australian Diamond player Paige Hadley, who was a member of the recent World Cup winning Australian team.

The clinics were skills-based, focusing on defence, footwork and shooting, before concluding with an informal Q&A session with the coaches. All participants received a netball and visor, along with signatures from the coaches.

Rugby League

Rugby League continued to be very popular with increased participants at clinics across the country

Macquarie Sports worked in partnership with the National Rugby League in 2015 to deliver rugby league clinics for primary school aged children in communities around Australia. More than 1,550 children participated in the clinics, from Perth in WA, Bathurst in NSW, Rockhampton and Cairns in QLD and Wodonga in Victoria.

Attending the clinics were former NRL legends Matthew King, Steven Menzies and Macquarie Sports Ambassador Nathan Hindmarsh.

The children also participated in the NRL's Backyard League program as part of the clinic. The program covers the fundamental skills of the game as well as an educational component to address the importance of maintaining a healthy and active lifestyle. Every child was provided with a healthy lunch, a Macquarie Sports football and autographs from the coaches at the clinic.

“It's been another big year of Macquarie Sports rugby league clinics and it's been great to have had 1,550 children from all areas of the country involved. The clinics provide a fun sporting experience and sporting equipment, which is always popular. Most importantly the clinics promote healthy and active lifestyles.”

Rugby Union

Players from the NSW Waratahs are a big drawcard with many children eager to train alongside their rugby heroes

Macquarie Sports and the NSW Waratahs partnered to deliver four community rugby clinics in 2015, reaching over 900 children in NSW. Over 100 children attended a clinic in St Marys, 180 in Bathurst, 120 at the Sydney Football Stadium and over 500 attended the annual Macquarie Sports Rugby Super Clinic held at St Joseph's College, Hunters Hill.

Many of the Waratahs most experienced players put the children through their paces, including Bernard Foley, Michael Hooper, Kurtley Beale, Wycliff Palu, Dave Dennis, Paddy Ryan, Will Skelton and Nick Phipps.

The two-hour clinics included rotations through several skills based sessions as well as small-sided games, including seven-a-side touch rugby.

- 4 Over 180 participants braved freezing conditions at the Waratahs clinic in Bathurst, NSW

The Sydney Football Stadium clinic also included a tour of the dressing rooms and training facilities by Waratahs captain, Dave Dennis. Every participant left the clinic with a football and kicking tee, as well as signatures and photos with the players.

Soccer

Our soccer clinics were in demand in both metropolitan Sydney and regional NSW

Macquarie Sports and Football NSW worked together again in 2015 to deliver soccer clinics in Dubbo and Griffith in regional NSW. The clinics focused on fun small-sided games, and aimed to improve the soccer participation levels of the 430 primary school aged students.

Current Sydney FC W-League player Renee Rollason and development staff from Football NSW coached the children as part of the clinics.

- 2 Primary school students in Griffith following the soccer clinic
- 3 Young soccer players under instruction during a clinic

It's been great to continue working with Macquarie Sports, taking football to regional and metropolitan areas. Our intro sessions cater for boys and girls of all abilities and the small-sided games create a fun and inclusive atmosphere that the children really enjoy. We look forward to continuing the partnership next year and visiting more communities in the city and the bush.

Tiwi Ashes

The Tiwi Ashes is a permanent fixture on the Macquarie Sports calendar

Since 2010, Macquarie Sports has travelled to the remote Indigenous communities of the Tiwi Islands in the Northern Territory to support the annual Tiwi Ashes cricket match and to deliver sporting clinics for local Tiwi Island children.

In August 2015, former Australian cricket greats Matthew Hayden and Andy Bichel, along with former Australian Wallabies Matthew Burke and Phil Waugh, Australian netball legend Liz Ellis and Australian athletics Olympian Kyle Vander Kuyp, led various sports competitions to determine which Tiwi Islands students would take part in the annual 20-over 2015 Tiwi Ashes cricket match.

The Hayden XI team retained the Ashes following a dominant display of cricket, played in front of more than 1,000 Tiwi Islanders who had gathered at Tiwi College to take part in the day's festivities.

The Tiwi Ashes event is a part of a broader initiative to raise funds for Tiwi College, a secondary boarding school managed by the Tiwi Education Board. The Macquarie Group Foundation has contributed over $A1.29 million to date, which has been used to develop an agricultural enrichment program. This program aims to provide the students with farming, agricultural and hospitality skills, work placement opportunities for recent Tiwi College graduates and supply of fruit and vegetables to local families.

National Primary Games

Macquarie Sports is pleased to be able to provide support for the National Primary Games in Tamworth, NSW

In 2015 Macquarie Sports was pleased to be the principal supporter of the National Primary Games, a two-day multi-sport carnival for primary aged school children run by the Northern Inland Academy of Sports.

Over 1,400 children travelled from cities across the eastern seaboard of Australia to Tamworth in NSW to take part in the inaugural games, which featured 15 different sports.

Macquarie's support of the games greatly reduced the entry costs for participants, allowing more children to benefit.

The games are supported by the Australian Olympic Committee and various Australian Olympians participated in the various events as part of the games.

The event culminated in the presentation of the 'Spirit of the Games' Award which is bestowed to the team who exhibit the best sportsmanship and friendship in their given sport.

Given the success of the games in their inaugural year, participation is expected to surge in 2016 with more than 2,000 children set to participate on the weekend of 9 and 10 April. Macquarie Sports will continue as principal supporter of the 2016 games.

Bigger plans for primary games 2016

MULTI-SPORTS FESTIVAL

THE final ball has only just been kicked but the Northern Inland Academy of Sport is already planning bigger and better 2016 National Primary Games (NPG).

The inaugural Macquarie Bank-sponsored NPG was held in Tamworth on the weekend and delivered a huge success, with around 1500 young sportsmen and women participating across 12 different sports.

They came from as far north as the Sunshine Coast, all throughout regional Queensland and NSW, right down to Bowral, and the response well and truly exceeded NIAS' expectations.

"We had a goal of having around 1000 children involved," NIAS Executive Officer Jason Lincoln said.

"We got just under 1500, which we were thrilled about."

The NPG is Mr Lincoln's brainchild. He carried the idea from the TAS Rugby Carnival, which he was one of the driving forces behind, and it has flourished in Armidale since it's rather focused on the spirit of sport," he said.

"It was after receiving their backing that the concept really came to fruition."

The next step was to find a major partner, and he was "lucky enough" to secure Macquarie Bank.

"The most exciting aspect from our perspective is the way the Tamworth community has latched onto the games including children participating and 19 local sporting associations contributing on so many levels," Mr Lincoln said

NATIONAL Primary Games (NPG) competitors will be cheered by two Olympic legends - Lyndsie Fogarty and Stephanie Moorhouse - when they compete in Tamworth next week for tomorrow's start of the inaugural Macquarie Bank-sponsored primary school sporting carnival.

The men's 100m sprint, which is the first of the 12 sports, will be contested at the 2016 NPG on Saturday night.

They will also be in action in a 100m sprint on Sunday night.

The competition begins tomorrow with all first-day games finishing around 10pm on Saturday night.

Cooper believes NIAS has the NPG "under control".

"We are lucky to have (Lincoln) but he had all the experience with the TAS Rugby Union Carnival," he said.

"We had to have everything ready. Now it's just a matter of waiting for the deadline."

To be able to welcome 1,400 children and their families to participate over the weekend is something that NIAS are delighted to achieve in our first attempt. The great thing about the games was the way that it brought the community together in support of the children, who had travelled from as far north as the Sunshine Coast and as far south as the Southern Highlands. Events of this nature are simply not possible without tremendous support and to have Macquarie come on board as our principal supporter has been truly humbling. Their support has provided this fantastic opportunity to thousands of young children.

My time with Macquarie was one of the most valuable experiences of my life. Pursuing an athletic career whilst completing my Bachelor of Commerce has been hard enough so the chance of doing an internship never seemed possible. The Macquarie Sports Scholarship offered me the flexibility which allowed me to have a true taste of the finance world. Everyone was so accommodating and I learnt so much that has been beyond valuable to apply to my ongoing studies. I am so thankful for such an amazing opportunity, in a company that covers so many different aspects of the finance sector. It was a true and honest taste of what my life after surfing could hold.
