Fund highlights

The Fund returned 8.69% (post-fees) for the month of August, outperforming the benchmark which returned 8.41%.

Key contributors to relative performance included overweight positions in Macmahon Holdings (MAH), SKS Technologies Group (SKS) and Ricegrowers Limited (SGLLV). Macmahon Holdings, a Perth based mining services company, delivered record earnings and revenue in FY25 which saw its share price rally by over 40%. SKS Technologies saw over 26% growth in its share price in August after announcing strong margin improvement in FY25 combined with strong cash flow into FY26.

Key detractors from relative performance included underweight positions in ZIP Co (ZIP) and Eagers Automotive (APE), and an overweight position in Clinuvel Pharmaceuticals (CUV). Eagers announced a material beat in their August results. With the prospect of improved margins and earnings upgrades going forward, the auto and parts distributor finished the month up 38%. ZIP stock reacted positively to its solid FY26 guidance and the potential to dual list on the NASDAQ, which got investors excited about an upward re-rating.

Market overview

Australian equities performed strongly in August, with the ASX Small Ordinaries up 8.41%, and the ASX 200 rising 3.10%. Reporting season wrapped up in August with mixed results, including a number of positive surprises across the mid-small caps space but more conservative outlooks and guidance amidst tougher operating conditions. Volatility was elevated throughout the period, where companies reporting lacklustre results or uncertain outlooks were sold off sharply. Despite this, the ASX200 reached record highs in August - with the rising expectations of US and Australian interest rate cuts a key driver.

During the reporting season, 21% of companies exceeded earnings expectations, 24% fell short, and 55% met forecasts. Brokers upgraded 42 companies, while 64 received downgrades. Small industrials stood out with a notable number of earnings beats. However, the market reaction to results was skewed negatively, with losses from earnings misses outweighing the gains from beats. Share price movements were also more volatile than usual, with market volatility 23% higher compared to recent reporting periods.

In Australian small caps, 9 of the 10 sectors were in positive territory led by Materials (+15.08%), Technology (+13.28%) and Consumer Discretionary (+11.81%). Within Materials the gold miners performed strongly led by Vault Minerals (+40.8%). Australian based technology company Codan generated a return of 49.5% while Automotive and Specialty Retail led the way for Consumer Discretionary with Eagers (+45.3%) and Lovisa (+21.34%) strong performers. Healthcare was the worst performing sector (-4.72%) with Clarity Pharmaceutical down -31.2% for the month.

Globally, the S&P 500 also rose in August, gaining 2.0% on the back of a strong US earnings season despite concerns over tariffs and inflation. Factors mitigating the tariff impact included a weaker US dollar, inventory adjustments ahead of Liberation Day, and ongoing investment in artificial intelligence.

In the bond market, Australian yields remained steady through August. On August 12, the Reserve Bank of Australia reduced the cash rate to 3.60% following signs of easing inflation and a slight uptick in unemployment. In the US, short-term bonds rallied, steepening the yield curve, as markets anticipated a potential rate cut by the Federal Reserve in September. The Australian dollar strengthened by nearly 2% against the US dollar, which helped support gold prices.

From a factor perspective, size (small caps) led the way with mid-caps also a strong contributor. Value and dividend yield outperformed, with momentum also a contributor. Growth was the major detractor on a relative basis, with some weaker earnings results moderating steeper growth assumptions.

Outlook

Questions of whether corporate earnings in Australia would support elevated valuations seem to have subsided given the market's new record highs amidst the backdrop of August's reporting season. Looking ahead, equity markets are increasingly buoyant as the likelihood of a pivot to an interest rate cutting cycle by the US Fed seems to rise, however, the longer-term rates trajectory remains unclear globally. Australian equities have remained resilient throughout reporting season despite more difficult operating conditions globally, with Australia's partial insulation from US tariff and inflation-related concerns again proving valuable.
