Our objectives

The Macquarie Group Foundation supports not-for-profit organisations around the world, predominantly in the locations in which Macquarie operates. Our work is significantly influenced by the activities of Macquarie staff and as such our key objectives are to:

• support and encourage staff leadership and engagement in the communities where Macquarie staff live and work
• contribute in skilled and sustainable ways to improve the performance and capacity of community organisations
• build awareness of Macquarie Group staff activities and achievements in the community.

We seek to achieve these objectives by:

• supporting staff-led community activities and matching Macquarie staff personal donations and fundraising efforts
• directing targeted funding to innovative and well-run organisations where Macquarie staff are involved through volunteering, pro bono skills transfer and in-kind support
• recognising staff leadership and community commitment through staff community awards and internal and external communications.

30+ years of philanthropy

1. Comprising Macquarie staff donations and fundraising and Foundation matching support for these; Foundation donations to commemorate staff attaining 10-year and 25-year anniversaries at Macquarie; Foundation grants to organisations with a Macquarie board member serving for more than 12 months; and Foundation grants to community organisations in the 12 months to 31 March 2015.

2. In the 12 months to 31 March 2015.

Note: Unless otherwise stated, all monies raised by staff include Macquarie Group Foundation matching and are denominated in local currency.
Chair’s message

In 2015, as the Macquarie Group Foundation celebrates its 30th anniversary, we remain committed to the long-held values of Macquarie’s philanthropic approach.

We continue to believe that companies have an important role to play in the development of a healthy community and a civil society. We do this by encouraging and supporting our staff to address community issues they are concerned about, by giving their time and expertise, as well as financial support matched by the Macquarie Group Foundation.

Including numerous strategic grants, this financial support means we have been able to provide more than $A240 million to thousands of community organisations since our inception.

We also continue to foster social innovation, working with both new and existing not-for-profit partners to identify ways to address community disadvantage.

In the year to 31 March 2015, Macquarie staff globally donated approximately 33,500 hours of their time and contributed $A8.5 million to more than 1,300 community organisations. Together with the Foundation, close to $A24.2 million was contributed in total.
Supporting staff involvement

During the year, the Foundation expanded its employee-led focus by establishing a ‘Foundation Week’. This community engagement campaign in October saw Macquarie staff raise more than $A1 million for hundreds of non-profits.

More than 100 events were organised across 30-plus Macquarie offices and staff enthusiastically embraced the Foundation’s special ‘2 for 1’ funding incentive, whereby fundraising amounts of up to $A5,000 were double matched.

This contribution was in addition to the many kilos of clothes and other goods collected across several offices for community organisations working with the disadvantaged.

Supporting pro bono expertise

Another distinguishing feature of Macquarie’s philanthropy is its focus on building the capacity of community organisations through the professional expertise of Macquarie staff. This is achieved through secondments and other contributions of time and expertise by individuals and teams.

During the year, the Foundation worked with Macquarie’s Learning and Development team to link Macquarie director-level employees to non-profit organisations in need of skilled volunteering in Sydney, London, Hong Kong and New York City.

This initiative aims to support not-for-profits in effectively meeting their objectives, while staff have the opportunity to develop leadership and project management skills outside of their day-to-day roles.

Supporting social innovation

Throughout its 30-year history, the Foundation has sought to pioneer new approaches to corporate philanthropy. During FY15, one of its initiatives – the Macquarie David Clarke Social Innovation Fellowship established in Australia in 2012 – was extended to the UK, Hong Kong and New York City.

This Fellowship, valued at $A20,000, encourages CEOs of not-for-profits to visit and research best practice social innovation from around the world.

The following CEOs were recognised:

- Alia Eyres, Mother’s Choice, Hong Kong
- Anita Grover, Auditory Verbal, UK
- Paul Edginton, SYC and Scott Harris, Beacon Foundation, joint winners, Australia.

In addition, Macquarie’s $A100,000 Social Innovation Award recognises, rewards and promotes new ideas that meet pressing community social needs. The winner of the 2014 Award was Perth-based Fogarty EDvance for its school principal leadership program.

Foundation team

The Macquarie Group Foundation’s work is made possible by the continued long-term support of Macquarie Group’s board and senior management, as well as the Foundation Committee and management across the world.

I would like to thank Alex Harvey, Sheryl Weil and Tanya Branwhite who retired from the Foundation Committee during the year. Their professional experience as well as membership of not-for-profit boards including OzHarvest, the Anika Foundation, the Schizophrenia Research Institute and Lifeline brought valuable input from the sector to the Committee.

I would also like to recognise Tony Graham, from Banking and Financial Services, Matt Nacard, from Macquarie Securities Group, and Ben Way, CEO, Asia who have joined the Committee since the last report. We thank all for their commitment to, and advancement of, Macquarie’s philanthropic goals around the world.

The Foundation Committee is proud of the contribution of Macquarie staff to their communities and remains committed to working alongside them to continue driving positive social impacts.

Shemara Wikramanayake
Chair
Macquarie Group Foundation Committee
2015 marks the Macquarie Group Foundation’s 30th anniversary. Milestones such as this prompt us to reflect on what has been achieved since our inception and how we can best celebrate this.

The Foundation and Macquarie staff have provided more than $A240 million to hundreds of community organisations around the world since 1985 but we recognise that support has always been contributed in many other ways as well.

Our philanthropic contribution has grown alongside Macquarie Group, supporting the increasing involvement of Macquarie staff in the community, the ongoing development of international programs and our focus on the sustainability of the not-for-profit sector.

What we do

The Foundation’s key objective since its formal establishment in 1985 has been to support not-for-profit organisations within the communities Macquarie staff live and work.

An integral part of this is our focus on staff engagement, which continues to grow. The level of Macquarie staff involvement in community organisations is broad and includes fundraising, volunteering, mentoring, board and executive committee membership, as well as the provision of pro bono support, such as business planning, strategic advice and education workshops. This has brought significant benefits to many not-for-profit organisations.

Our 2010 annual report – which marked 25 years since our establishment – noted the particular depth of support we provide to the community. Many of our partners, in addition to receiving a Foundation grant, benefit from fundraising and volunteer support from Macquarie staff, regular donations made through the Macquarie Giving program and have a Macquarie staff member serving on their board.

This is an enduring feature of our Foundation, and it enables us to build deep and long-term relationships with innovative and well-run community organisations around the world.
Our focus on innovation

Over the last 15 years in particular, the Foundation has focused on innovation and capacity building across the community sector. We have done this through:

- social innovation awards and fellowships to encourage novel thinking and to fund international exploration. Macquarie’s biennial Australian Social Innovation Award was launched in 2010 and our David Clarke Social Innovation Fellowship in 2012. The Fellowship was extended to our overseas hubs in New York, the UK and Hong Kong in 2014
- social innovation dialogues and summits to bring together the best minds in business, government and the not-for-profit sector to discuss new ways to resolve entrenched social problems. We also fund an online quarterly publication in partnership with Social Ventures Australia Consulting, to share knowledge and experience on increasing social impact
- introducing specialist categories of grant-making to expand the options available to foster not-for-profit growth. This includes grants focused on seed funding organisations with new ideas; scaling innovation in organisations that need more capacity; and collaborative funding between organisations with shared objectives.

Recognising our 30 years of support

In 2015, we are recognising innovation as the enduring hallmark of the Macquarie Group Foundation in a number of practical ways, including:

A special 30th anniversary Macquarie Social Innovation Award

We believe that progress in driving social improvements is often made when innovative ideas are encouraged. In 2010, to recognise the Foundation’s 25th anniversary, we established the biennial Macquarie Australian Social Innovation Award, valued at $A100,000. This Award was established to recognise a not-for-profit organisation or program which addresses an unmet community need within Australia.

The School for Social Entrepreneurs won this inaugural Award; Milk Crate Theatre won in 2012; and the Fogarty EDvance program won in 2014. All demonstrate a great commitment to social innovation and operate programs that deliver real change.

This year, as a special one-off celebration for our 30th anniversary, the Award’s value was increased to $A300,000. We have received many high quality entries and the winner will be announced in August 2015.

A book exploring best practice social innovation

With the publication in July 2015 of Innovation Big and Small: How Great Ideas Are Strengthening Our Community, we hope to support the ongoing conversation amongst government, policy-makers, the community sector, business and citizens on how best to address intractable social issues.

Innovation Big and Small contains a collection of interviews with a range of social innovators, predominantly in Australia.

A social innovation hub hosting social entrepreneurs

Bulb, opening in Sydney later this year, is a physical office space for social entrepreneurs. It will bring together many elements of Macquarie’s grant-making over the years: innovation, capacity building and the fostering of collaboration.

Bulb is designed as a co-location environment for social ventures, providing a space for these organisations to collaborate and innovate. It is expected that the proximity of the space next to Macquarie’s Sydney headquarters will also facilitate skilled volunteering opportunities such as business planning, financial modelling and much-needed additional capacity for these organisations.

How Macquarie... Mentors the next generation

Macquarie has a range of educational and mentoring programs to create opportunities for youth, including:

- Big Buddy reading with Read Ahead in New York, where more than 40 staff volunteer weekly to read one-on-one and provide a positive role model for elementary age public school students
- work experience placements for students from Cristo Rey High School in Houston
- the New York LEADS summer internship program, partnering with the Double Discovery Center at Columbia University. This initiative pairs Macquarie mentoring teams with students who will be the first in their families to attend college, providing work experience and career readiness skills
- a mentoring program with America Needs You in New York and Chicago, where volunteers provide college and career skills guidance for low income, high-potential college students.

How Macquarie... Shares professional skills

Macquarie also supports the not-for-profit sector through the provision of pro bono work, including:

- connecting Macquarie learning and development experts with grant partner the Global Foodbanking Network to help develop an e-learning system for food banks around the world
- delivering targeted workshops and training to multiple non-profit organizations on project management, effective communication, management coaching and other topics.
How Macquarie... Funds a better way of life

- In Houston, a staff team raised close to $40,000 for Honor Flight Houston, enabling 25 WWII veterans to visit their Washington DC war memorial for the first time and be welcomed home to a heroes’ ceremony.

- In Los Angeles, a Macquarie team donated $80,000 to Tower Cancer Foundation, which will establish a cutting-edge research fund investigating the causes and treatment of breast cancer.

- In Mexico City, staff raised $16,000 for the orphanage Fundacion Dulce Hogar Dulce to support a full year of school supplies for 40 children.

- In New York, Macquarie teams across different businesses raised significant funds for a range of not-for-profits, including $120,000 for Medicines Sans Frontiers’ Ebola relief efforts in West Africa; $196,000 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association’s services and summer camps; $200,000 for America Needs You; and more than $260,000 for the Carter Burden Center for the Aging.

- In Philadelphia, employees raised more than $205,000 to benefit the health and wellness organization La Puentes Salud, serving Philadelphia’s low-income Latino population.

- In San Jose, a team of staff raised more than $78,000 for new facilities and programming at Tuolumne Trails, a camp that serves young people with disabilities.

- In Vancouver, Macquarie employees helped raise more than $355,000 for the Canucks Autism Network Society, with proceeds going to sports and camp programs for young people with autism in Canada.

How Macquarie... Rolls up its sleeves

- In New York, refurbishing schools and civic buildings, volunteering in soup kitchens and recycling mobile phones for US armed forces overseas.

- In Houston, New York and Toronto, collecting, packing and sorting food for local food banks.

- In Philadelphia, organizing a bake sale for the City of Elderly Love.

What really stands out about the Macquarie Group Foundation is its innovative and engaged approach to understanding our key challenges.

How Macquarie... Mentor the next generation

• Macquarie’s Gurgaon office works with university students from slum communities in Delhi through an internship and mentoring program managed in partnership with Asha Development Society. FY15 was the third year students were offered the opportunity to gain exposure to Macquarie’s corporate environment by learning about its different operations.

• Over the last five years, the Po Leung Kuk Macquarie mentoring program has matched more than 50 students in the PLK schooling system with almost 100 Macquarie staff. Specialist human resource employees provide practical skills through interactive workshops while mentors share career and life experience tips.

How Macquarie... Shares professional skills

• In Singapore, staff collaborated to solve critical funding challenges faced by local migrant rights organisation, and Macquarie community grant partner, HOME.

• Hong Kong’s human resource team provided expert advice in the sourcing, short-listing and selection criteria of the Justice Centre Hong Kong’s executive directorship, when the role became vacant during the year.

How Macquarie... Funds a better way of life

• To ensure the technology platforms of Macquarie grant partner Mother’s Choice are up-to-date, Macquarie is funding new infrastructure and systems for the Hong Kong children’s charity. Staff are also providing significant pro bono support for this IT project, as well as organising additional fundraising activities.

The opening of a joint Macquarie-funded multi-surface sports pitch benefiting Po Leung Kuk kids and the Tackling Life rugby program.
• In India, Macquarie is funding a range of projects, including traditional music training in local schools via the National Centre for the Performing Arts, the building of sanitation facilities and infrastructure through Vatsayla Foundation and Swades Foundation, and education, health and personal empowerment initiatives for slum dwellers via the Asha Development Society.

• Macquarie’s Manila office mobilised almost 1000 staff, family, friends, clients and the Australian expatriate community at its second charity fun run. With the addition of new routes, the event catered to all and raised $A25,000 for the Center of Excellence in Public Elementary Education.

• Now in its ninth year, staff in Macquarie’s Tokyo office again supported the annual Financial Industry in Tokyo (FIT) for Charity running event, raising much-needed funds for local community organisations.

• As part of International Women’s Day, events in Hong Kong, Manila and Singapore focused on the work Opportunity International is doing to support micro-finance initiatives in developing countries, with staff donations complementing Foundation support for Opportunity’s social performance management project.

• Macquarie-supported high school students from A Better Chance Foundation helped judge the Manila office’s Cookies for Kids fundraiser, where teams baked and sold goods. Funds raised from the activity will provide stationery for the scholars throughout their school year.

How Macquarie… Rolls up its sleeves

More than 330 people across Macquarie’s Asia offices partnered with 20 not-for-profit organisations as part of the region’s various community days. Activities included:

• maintenance and improvements to community buildings in Beijing, Seoul and Shanghai

• packing and distribution of essential food and personal items to local communities in Hong Kong and Singapore

• sorting photos recovered from the 2011 tsunami in Toyko.

Macquarie staff made life-saving blood donations in Manila and Hong Kong, with more than 300 staff, including employees from Macquarie’s strategic wealth management partner Julius Baer, supporting a Red Cross blood drive.

So many Macquarie team members have given their professional skills and personal resources, and as a result have had a profound and lasting impact on our work with vulnerable girls and women in Hong Kong.

How Macquarie...
Mentors the next generation

• Approximately 100 Macquarie staff in Sydney alternate one lunch hour once a week to read at Plunkett Street Primary School, enabling children to improve their reading skills and spend one-on-one time with a positive role model.

• In Brisbane and Melbourne, more than 50 staff participate in Ardoch Youth Foundation’s Literacy Buddies program, where they write and receive monthly letters from primary school pen pals as a way to improve the children’s literacy and social development.

• In partnership with not-for-profit organisation CareerTrackers, Macquarie staff in Sydney have mentored two Indigenous university students via an eight-week internship, familiarising them with the world of work and accelerating their professional development.

• In partnership with the Raise Foundation, 13 Macquarie Sydney staff volunteer weekly at JJ Cahill Memorial High School helping Year 9 students to identify and achieve their goals.

How Macquarie...
Shares professional skills

• Staff in three Macquarie divisions joined forces in FY15 to produce Suicide Prevention Australia’s first annual report, creating a template for the charity to produce a new version each year.

• As part of the Jawun Indigenous Corporate Partnerships Program with Macquarie Capital, four secondees worked at various locations in the Cape York and East Kimberley regions during FY15. They spent a total of 39 weeks sharing their expertise with Indigenous organisations and supporting Indigenous leaders.

• Macquarie staff in Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth mentored graduates from the School for Social Entrepreneurs, which runs practical learning sessions for entrepreneurs with a socially or environmentally beneficial start-up idea. This initiative is part of the Macquarie Director Program, which aims to support not-for-profits to achieve their objectives. Staff also have the opportunity to develop leadership and project management skills outside their day-to-day roles. Mentors provide a range of specialist skills and offer one-on-one support, helping individuals navigate the challenges of starting new social enterprises.
How Macquarie... Rolls up its sleeves

- More than 30 staff in Macquarie’s Brisbane office put together 700 care-packs for at-risk babies and 150 back-to-school stationery packs for local children in need. The initiative was organised through GIVIT, a community organisation which coordinates the donation of new or quality used items to underprivileged families.

- Working with OzHarvest, a Melbourne employee regularly volunteers part of his weekend each month to rescue over 150kg of food, enabling local soup vans to create more than 450 nutritious meals for the food insecure. The Melbourne office also rolled up their sleeves at an OzHarvest ‘Cooking for a Cause’ volunteering day where they prepared meals using rescued food.

How Macquarie... Funds a better way of life

- In response to their daughter’s Type 1 diabetes, a Sydney employee and her husband undertook a year-long fundraising campaign during FY15, completing 40 fundraising events. With the support of friends and family, they raised over $93,500 for the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, including $21,000 matching from the Macquarie Group Foundation.

- Macquarie’s Wealth Management division hosted live, collective-giving events in Sydney and Auckland for The Funding Network, at which social entrepreneurs pitch their ventures to the public to raise money. At TFN events in Perth and Melbourne as well, staff invited their networks to attend, which also helped raised TFN’s profile. The Macquarie Group Foundation is a founding member of TFN Australia and was a partner of these events.

- A Perth employee initiated a ‘What’s for Lunch’ fundraising campaign for The Hunger Project, which works to end hunger and poverty among the rural poor in developing countries. She recruited colleagues, friends, family and local schools to participate, raising $38,000.

- Passionate about increasing the capacity of SYC - a not-for-profit organisation centred on employment, training and youth services - an Adelaide employee recruited new donors by initiating a giving circle and coordinating various fundraising events throughout the year.

How Macquarie…
Mentors the next generation

In England, Macquarie mentors young people through a range of partnerships with local community organisations, including:

- Elizabeth Garrett Anderson School in Islington, which connects Year 10 students to Macquarie staff over the course of the school year. Since the inception of the Mentoring Works programme 10 years ago, over 250 Macquarie mentors have been matched with nearly 500 students. The aim of the initiative is to raise the students’ aspirations, build confidence and expose them to the world of work.

- the BIG Alliance (Businesses for Islington Giving), which has launched a partnership through Mentoring Works with Macquarie and local City and Islington College sixth form students (many of whom are the first in their family to go to university). Nineteen Macquarie graduates partnered with students, meeting regularly throughout the year to review and discuss their university applications, options for study and budgeting.

- a young leaders’ programme for seniors at Islington’s Holloway School, with eight volunteers, representing various Macquarie divisions, presenting a series of workshops. Themes included communication, confrontation, decision-making and teamwork.

- the Petchey Academy in Hackney, where each week a team of six Macquarie staff mentors work with students after school via ReachOut.

Students have also visited Macquarie’s offices to learn more about the City. In FY15, Macquarie was shortlisted for the Charity Times’ Corporate Partnership Award for its work with ReachOut.

In Johannesburg, staff worked with Afrika Tikkun, where students visited Macquarie for careers sessions to learn more about Macquarie’s business and the world of work.
How Macquarie… Funds a better way of life

- In Frankfurt, staff raised over €16,000 for Nandri Kinderlife, a charity supporting children in southern India.
- In Glasgow, Macquarie supported the Make a Wish Foundation, raising money through a variety of staff-led fundraisers, including quizzes, golf days and bake sales.
- In Johannesburg, long-term community partner Inkwenkwezi School in Soweto received Macquarie funding for its teachers’ salaries, as well as utility bills such as telephone and wifi. Additionally, staff organised a ‘Bring a Book’ campaign with over 200 books donated to the school’s library.
- In London, nine Macquarie staff raised close to £3,000 for Help For Heroes – a UK charity supporting those who have been wounded in Britain’s conflicts - by cycling around London streets in their swimming trunks.

How Macquarie… Rolls up its sleeves

- In Vienna, staff prepared a traditional Austrian dish for over 180 homeless shelter users, spending time after their cooking to get to know the organisation.
- In Johannesburg, staff painted several Inkwenkwezi School classrooms during the year to help brighten up the school environment for students and teachers.

How Macquarie… Shares professional skills

- In FY15, Macquarie’s UK CORE (Community Resourcing) Programme, a project of the BIG Alliance, matched 31 Macquarie volunteers with eight local charities. Over the last six years, Macquarie has worked with more than 30 Islington charities, providing strategic and business planning, project management, event and fundraising skills, and IT and human resources expertise to help build the capacity and sustainability of community organisations.

“"This year, a team from Macquarie’s IT division helped us with a major project, providing consultation and pro bono advice as we transitioned onto a new platform, saving us a significant amount of money."”

Peter Blackwell, CEO, ReachOut Mentoring, UK
A global celebration of staff engagement

Foundation Week

As a way to demonstrate Macquarie’s staff-led community approach, the Macquarie Group Foundation initiated the global ‘Foundation Week’ initiative in 2014 to recognise the depth and diversity of community support by Macquarie staff around the world.

The event in mid-October saw staff involved in around 160 activities, supporting more than 120 community organisations and with events held across more than 30 Macquarie offices. These included:

- arm-wrestling in Calgary for Heart Beats Children’s Society
- bake sales in Dublin for Our Lady’s Children’s Hospital
- magic lessons for St Barnabas’ Society and Home in Hong Kong
- photography displays in Kuala Lumpur for the National Autism Society of Malaysia
- pizza lunch fundraisers in Los Angeles for Tower Cancer Foundation
- trans-Atlantic rowing competitions in London and Houston for the Reach Out Academy and Honor Flight
- karaoke in Manila for the Children’s Rehabilitation Centre
- pink shirt fundraisers in Sydney for the Cancer Council.
Through Macquarie Group Foundation matching support for staff fundraising and donations, more than $A1 million was raised over the period.

This contribution was in addition to the many kilos of clothes and other goods collected across several offices for community organisations working with the disadvantaged.

A popular feature of the week was the special ‘2 for 1’ incentive matching for team fundraising events, with amounts up to $A5,000 double matched, instead of the single matching the Foundation normally provides under its staff support policy.

In some offices, information sessions with Macquarie grant partners also provided an opportunity for staff to learn more about community organisations funded by the Foundation.

At a lunchtime meeting with grant partner Streetwise Opera in London, staff were invited to join a singalong with Streetwise’s homeless participants. In Sydney staff quizzed the leaders of OzHarvest, Can Too and Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation.

New York staff met with more than a dozen local non-profit organizations and their clients during a ‘Stories of Impact’ lunch and Manila employees learned more about local charities Hospicio de San Jose, ABC Foundation and CENTEX (Center of Excellence in Public Elementary Education).

The Macquarie Group Foundation Week will be held again in October 2015.
